

Williamsburg Farm and Nature Programs

Weekly Adventures and Explorations
Registration 2025/2026

We believe that children learn best when they are actively part of the process: when they are curious and make connections for deeper understanding, when they work with their hands, move about and develop stamina – mentally and physically – and develop a camaraderie that comes with collaborative discoveries and problem solving. This is what happens in our Farm and Nature programs. We value the opportunity to provide the space and time for learners to view themselves as scientists, researchers, readers, writers, and drivers of their unique learning journey.

Farm Fridays:

We continue our tradition of Farm Fridays with discoveries and explorations of farm, fields, and forest. Our Fridays are full of heritage handcrafting, community building projects, nature investigations, preparation for our end-of-semester Farm Stand, and many opportunities for choice and emerging interests. We encourage nature practices that develop stewardship and creativity alongside camaraderie.

Wednesday Land Lab (for those participating in Farm Fridays)

For those seeking to combine child-centered learning with academic benchmarks, our Wednesday Land Lab program is designed for observation, exploration, and hands-on innovation. Our goals include:

- Understanding the natural world through studies in plants, animals, ecosystems, and weather patterns.
- Discovering the interconnectedness of living and non-living things and the environment.
- Establishing a practice of stewardship in nature through developing personal connections to it.
- Mastering basic science concepts (including growth, change, and interdependence) through nature-based challenges.
- Developing skills in critical thinking, problem-solving, creativity.
